

Biography

Luke Cissell writes and records music in a distinctive style that is by turns arrestingly melodic, beguilingly layered, and eminently human, developed out of his roots as a young musician immersed in classical violin repertoire and the Appalachian mountain music of his native bluegrass. His output includes five albums of original music, a chamber opera, a feature length film score, three string quartets, a string quintet, a sonata for viola and piano, and assorted works for solo and mixed ensemble.

Born in Louisville, Kentucky, Cissell began playing music at a young age—he was a bluegrass fiddling champion at the age of eight and performed Mozart's third violin concerto on his first honors recital soon thereafter. He earned a degree in history from Princeton University before establishing himself as a professional musician and composer in New York City, cutting his teeth as a session musician for a wide variety of artists from Ingrid Michaelson to Philip Glass while performing at many of the city's most well-known venues including Carnegie Hall, CBGB, The Knitting Factory, The Bitter End, Rockwood Music Hall, John Zorn's The Stone, Bargemusic, Radio City Music Hall, and Avery Fisher Hall at Lincoln Center.

Cissell is a 2016-17 Very Young Composers Teaching Artist with the New York Philharmonic.
